The research in this thesis is motivated by a fact that extreme sports community in Probolinggo city is still dominated by patriarchal culture. In the extreme community, which is the Neutral Trail Community Probolinggo. Women and men essentially have the same role and status in a society, which distinguishes the functions and roles that are carried out to overcome various problems of life. In subsequent developments, women sometimes have to be in domestic place such as in the kitchen because of the demands of life that gradually get justification from society as second class creatures (second sex). The formulation of the problem in this thesis research is (1) What the public perception of women in Neutral Trail Community Probolinggo (2) How the women proves that they are not the same as the public perception? . The objectives of this research are: (1) To know how the public perception of women on the trail Community. (2) To know how the women are proving that they are not the same as the public Perception.

In this study, researchers used descriptive qualitative research methods, the theory used is Deconstruction by Jacques Derrida and Theory feminism as a supporter of the Main Theory. With the approach used is Cultural studies. That is to see about the natural behavior in a culture or the whole social group. Data collection techniques were obtained from interviews, observations, documentation and literature.

Based on the results of the study can be concluded that (1) In social life, especially in society, women have an important role in the mobility of community development. But on the other hand women have a weak position in terms of tradition and patriarchal culture. (2) Women in extreme communities experiencing the discrimination in the form of double burden and stereotypes that actually unwittingly become trust until women do not have a bargaining position. But women in Netral Trail Community were able to break that assumption. They are able to enter into the area of masculinity without forgetting their nature as a woman. They prove that the weak label embedded in her is merely a socially constructed. Their existence is expected to provide a new understandin assumption g in the society.
